BENEFITS

Graphic design is more than a fancy stuff posted on social media networks. They are one of the strategy in this so-called Attention Economy wherein human attention is treated as commodity and is used to analyze the customer's interest. Graphic design is used by advertising agencies to sell products and services and get in touch with their customers for the latest updates.

In time and with the booming trend of Cloud Technology, many jobs including graphic design are being outsourced by small businesses to homebased or freelance graphic designers. In the near future with graphic designers being more adaptive to the latest software, there is a great chance that corporate organizations will also outsourced their services direct to homebased graphic designers. This is more cost-effective since its the production labor that will be paid excluding the cut of advertising agencies.
